The Chinese Policy of the United States. The course pursued by the United States government in China, in refusing to participate in quarrel, in which it had no interest whatever, etween England and the latter country, is still made the subject of unfavorable comment by a portion of the English press. The cordial reception which our minister has been the recipient of at Pekin, and the entire success of the American mission, while the English have suffered defeat at the mouth of the Pethe, and utterly failed to secure favorable terms for themselves at the hands of the Chinese Government has had the effect of souring the temper of our transatlantic cousins, and they endeavor to gloss over their own blundering mansgement, by endeavoring to make it appear that our minister had taken underhand measures, and submitted to degrading exactions in order to sequire our present position and standing with the Government of China. The London Star, however, takes a different view of the matter from the most of its English cotemporaries, and in its issue of the 22d of October, says :

$4.50 COAL—PERSONS WISHING good Coal of all kinds, the best in the market, carefully prepared and honest weight, will get it by applying at yards 200 Grand 50 Stanton and ITI Orchard-to G. L. WEATEL. 200 Mar 188 in its issue of the 22d of October, says:

We see in the success of the United States mission to China a complete condemnation of our own conduct, and, unable to conceal or deny the fact, the defenders of the Baccz system of negotiation endeavor to account for it by offensively imputing to the American Minister and the American Government a humilating submission to the insulting pretensions of the Chinese. Of course, they do not believe in anything of the kind, but it is hoped in this way to weaken the wormwood of our defeat at the Peiho, reckless of the insult such a staten eat involves to the United States Government. is hoped in this way to weaken the wormwood of our defeat at the Peiho, reckless of the insut such a staten ent involves to the United States Government and people. That Government, we should all pretty well know by this time; is not in the habit of tamely submitting to insult or injury from any Power. It is not so lyng since we ourselves, had goed proof of this, and the ignominious dismissal of Mr. Champton by the Washington Cobinet might have staggested the wisdom of saying nothing about submitting te insult, or about American humilation. No Power in Europe would dare to offer offence or insult to the Western Republic, for they well know that it fears them not and is ever ready to defend its interests and vindicate its honor when either is menaced. What wretched stuff, therefore, is this about Mr. Wann humilisting his country and himself by going to Pokin in the way that accorded with Chinese law and custom? The Americans, who know how to make their rights respected by strong Gyvernments, know also how to respect the peculiarities, or even prejudices, of weak ones. They know that in China they have no right to insist upon the observance of Western forms, and that if the Government at Pakin chooses to consider itself of colostal origin, and, therefore, superior to the rest of the world, it is no business of theirs to go to war with it on that account, so long as it performs its engagements, and acts in a spirit of friendliness. That it has done to towards the Americans is in o degree doubtful, for the Americans have never builled, bomberded, and extorted there, as we unhappity have done.

It certainly is humilisting to England to find the United States successfully negotiating treaties with Elina, while she herself, in alliance with France, has so caregic nely failed. But how will it help us to swid a military expedition up the Polho? Way, it would only be plunging us deeper into the difficulty, and making success more and more improbable. Instead of acting so toxishly, would it not be wiser to consider a little and see whether we might not, by adopting the actions of the Asus ricens, succeed as well as they? It is true there is a terrible amount of injuries to be atomed for before the Chinnes will come to consider the English as blameless and as friendly as they do the Americans, but a real change in our tone and conduct, vouched by acts, would, we dere say, specify convince the Celestials that the past was to be part, and restore confidence in our intentions. Yet this change is not to be effected without the secrifice of some favorate sine of ours, which some people, whom we suppose charitably to be unconscious of the implied blamphemy, consider necessary. We must be prepared to give up the opture traffic, and get an Indian rivence from honest sources. We ought to give back Hong Kong, and refund the large sums of money which we unjustly exterted from the Chinese as indemnity for the smuggled opins most justly confiscated by that Government. But we fear it is absolutely useless to make any such suggestion. But this at least is practicable, as well as politic and honest—namely, to abandon the Bowatra-Bauca system of insolence and injury, and adopt the just and reasonable method of proceeding which the Americans have proved to be the best. Let us part company, too, with Louis Narolason. Our per-nicious Chinese policy does not spring from the active alliance with htm, it is true; but its dangers are immeasurably increased by that alliance. The United States Government is a pattern for us on this point also

We have Galveston dates to the 27th ult. The News says the work of repairing and finishing up on the Galveston, Houston, and Henderson Railroad is progressing most satisfactorily under the new organization, and the entire road from Virgicia Point to Houston will be in fine rounding order by the time the bridge and draw are completed, and the track laid from Eagle Grove to that city.

A GENTLEMAN from Hempstead writes as follows to the Galveston Netes, in regard to the depredations of the Indians on the frontier:

More than one hundred lives have been taken, in the last two years, by the Indian foe, and property of immense value destroyed. Not a paper from the East and North but comes filled with accounts of murders and robberies. For a number of years many renegade and disaffected Indians from Texas, have taken refuge in the towns of Moxico, adjacent to the Rio Grande: numbers of runsway negroes have also encaped into that country; numerous Mexicans who have been driven out of Texas with my time or neighbors, and cross over into Texas with impunity, and kill and steal. The presence of the regular army does not deter them in their designs, well knowing that they will not be pursued beyond the limits of the Rio Grande by this class of soldiery. The military forts are not dreaded by the Indians: many depredations have been committed in hearing of the garrison calls, and in sight of the flag staff. The Widow and the Parson.

The Widow and the Parson.

In a Latin sermon on widowhood by JEAN RAULIN, a monk of Cluny of the 15th century, there is a story which RABELIA'S has told again in his own way. RAWLIN's version is this:

"A widow consulted her parish priest about her entering into a second marriage. She told him she stood in need of a helpmate and protector, and that her journeyman, for whom she had taken a fancy, was industrious and well acquainted with her iste huaband's trade. 'Very well,' said the priest, 'you had better marry lika.' 'And yet,' rejoined the widow, 'I am afraid to do it, for who knows but I may find my servant become my master ?' 'Wesl, then, said the priest, 'don't have him.' But what shall I do?' said the widow; the business left me by my poor dear departed husband is more than I cam manage by myself.' 'Marry him than,' said the priest. 'Ay, but suppose he turns out a scamp,' said the widoy? 'he may get hold of my property, and run through it all.' 'Don't have him,' said the priest. Thus the dialogue went on, the priest always agreeing in the last opinion expressed by the widow, until st length, seeing that her mind was actually made up to marry the journeyman, he told her to consult the church bells, and they would advise her best what to do. The bells were rung, and the widow heard them distinctly say, 'Do take your man; do take your man.' Accordingly, she went home and married him forthwith, but it was not long before he thrashed her soundly, and made her feel that, instead of his mis tress, she had become his servant. Back, she went to the priest, cursing the hour when she had been credulous enough to act upon his advice. 'Good woman,' said be, 'I am afraid you did not rightly understand what the bells said to you.' He rang them agein, and then the poor woman heard clearly, but too late, these warning words, 'Do not take him,' do not take him.'"

Railways in France.

The Constitutionnel publishes a long article on the works of general utility which the peace will enable France to undertake; and smong the rest specifies the new railway lines now in progress and in contemplation. It advers with satisfaction to the rapidity with which such works have been executed in France, after an undue delay at first, and points to the fact, that the extent of railways. the rapidity with which such works have been executed in France, after an undue delay at first, and points to the fact that the extent of railway communication in the country is now greater than in Great Britain. It says:—

France, under the influence of the Imperial Government, has been able to repair the time lost at first in discussions as to the mode of execution, and subsequently in political revolutions. We now possess eight thousand seven hundred kilometres of railway, (the kilometre is five-eighths of a mile,) which have cost nearly 4.000,000,000,—of which, 3.250,000,000, were raised by companies, and 750,000,000.000, were raised by companies, and 750,000,000.000, were asked by companies, and 750,000,000.000, by the State. But we have still 7.690 kilometres to construct, and nearly 3.000,000,000, to disburse for them. Such is the object we have to attain during the new epoch of peace which is now commencing. And when we shall have accomplished that object Prance will have a greater length of railway than any other country in the world, as she will have 16 300 kilometres, whilst the United Kingdom of Great Britain will only have 15 500. But the same will not be the case with regard to the population or the superficial extent of territory. Thus when the great networks shall be executed France will only have 450 kilometres for every million of the population, whilst in Soctiand the proportion will be 910 kilometres, in England 866, and in Helgium 482. There is thousfore nothing rash in the projects which we are now endeavoring to carry out.

To the Editor of the New York Sun,

A few days ago, we were in full expectation of bringing our Mexican affairs to a satisfactory conclusion; but, to our great astonishment, it has failen through for a very simple cause, on the part of the U. B. Government, asking and demanding what would be derogatory to the Mexican nation, and dishonorable to the U. S. Government. As far as I have learned, all the particular points were agreed upon, with the exception of one, which was that the Mexican Government should give to the U. S. a perpetual grant to open Transit routes through the Mexican territory to carry mails, passengers, troops, munitions of war, to and from the Pacific coast, free of transit duties, for which the U. S. Government agreed to pay $4,000,000, two of which were to be reserved to pay the American citizens their claims, when adjusted by a commission to be jointly appointed; any balance that may be found due over the two millions of dollars, to be assumed by the Mexican government, to be paid by bonds, &c. All this was well, but the U. S. Government is addition to this, required to have the right to march text recover into the Mexican territory at any time it by the Mexican government, to be paid by bonds, &c. All this was well, but the U. S. Government in addition to this, required to have the right to march its troops into the Mexican territory at any time it may deem proper, to protect the routes, without consulting the Mexican Government, if necessary, or not. This Mexico will not agree to, as it would deprive her of all right to her nationality, and place her in a defenceiess state, and would only be a shadow of a Government, without the means to carry out its provisions. This is the stumbling point to the conclusion of the Treaty; and, if this is the ult matum of the U. S. Government, which, as we learn by the last steemer, President Juans absolutely declines, he is in the right, and our Government in the wrong, to place such an obstacle in the way of getting our claims stitled. Is There is but one course left, and that has been suggested to President Juans, by a friend of Mexico, and that is, that the two governments shall unite in protecting the routes, and the one nearest to it to do so if he has type into the other's territory; if both governments has troops at hand, they shall unite to put down the disturbance, &c. At all times one of the government forces to be on hand to act during the absence of the other, &c. This is the only way Mexice can assist, in honer to herself and her nation. If the United Etates does not accept it, she is to blame, and her citizens to suffer.
